Latest News and Updates

It's hard to believe it's already late August. I've been very busy painting during this pandemic, and also archiving thousands of my sketches, plus working on teaching materials for my classes starting in September at the Art Students League of Denver. These materials will also be the basis for a new book I'm envisioning that will be a helpful, practical approach to drawing the figure. I wanted to let you know of some current and upcoming events that I'm participating in, including some national art exhibitions and a first-ever outdoor art fair for Curtis Center for the Arts in Greenwood Village, Colorado.

Thank you for your interest.
Mitch

Current and Upcoming Special Exhibitions

Here are some important exhibitions (and an art fair) where you can see my work.
